find it to their advantage to call and examine the stock.
W. E. HOLLOWAY.

LADIES' DELIGHT!
RELIEF COME AT LAST.
J. tented Sept. 26th, 1855, is a large 1 b with zinc fitted on the bottom, also on the underside of the rubber. It stands on a stool, and weighs about 25 lbs; is simple and handy
and has been thoroughly examined and tried by thousands at the West within the past year, who pronounce it to be the best labor saver ever offered to the public. It has been tested sufficiently long to prove that when ever it has been used properly, it will roll a better story for itself than I can communicate.
Give it a trial, and you will be entirely satisfied of its superiority.
A. G. GREENE, Agent,
No. 13 Church-st., Newport, R. I.

corpse for any desirable length of time, until friends and relatives can arrive from Europe
or distant parts of our own country.
If required they can give the best of references as to their mode of attending to matters of this kind.

Orders for the whole or part of these are promptly attended to, and will be promptly executed, with the utmost regard for the feelings of those concerned.

LIGHT! LIGHT! LIGHT!—Have you seen Dr. Greene's patent, non-explosive, self-generating Gas Lamp? If not, call at
No. 93 Thames-st., where you will find a large assortment of Lamp, Table, Parlor, Hanging, Bracket, and Lamp Lamps. These lamps are to be used, and give a beautiful light, and the cost of fuel is only one cent per hour. All kinds of lamps altered to the gas lamps at short notice. Fuel of the best quality, for sale. The lamps may be seen burning at any time during the day or evening, at No. 93 Thames-st.

NOTICE.

forming his friends and the public generally, that he still continues to carry on the Planing Business in all its branches at Joseph Lyon's shop on Commercial Wharf.
He has a large assortment of pumps of the best quality for sale at cost—also lead pipes, sheet lead, and the usual articles kept by plumbers. j13 N. M. CHAPPEL.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS
R. H. EDDY, Solicitor of PATENTS
(Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837.)
NO. 70 STATE, OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

AFTER an extensive practice of upwards
of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries.
Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with despatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of Patents or inventions, and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

This Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through its extensive inventories for securing patents, or ascertaining the contingency of inventions, unsurpassed by if not immeasurably superior to any which can be offered there elsewhere. The testimonials below give proof that none is MORE successful at the PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES
AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional services so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents. These besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents
granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer
superior facilities for obtaining patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington,
to procure a patent, and the usual great delay
there are here saved inventors.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
GILAS. MASON, U. S. Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors
that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and successful consideration
at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE, U. S. Commissioner of Patents.
BOSTON, February 8, 1858.

"Mr. R. P. Eddy is made for me THIR-TEEN applications on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend inventors to apply to him
for their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.

From Sept. 17th, 1857, to June 17th, 1858,

port and the neighboring towns have found protection for their understanding, can still find a full assortment of Boots and Shoes of every description suitable for the present, and approaching season, the variety being too large to enumerate the different kinds, it is sufficient to say without using the words
"Cheap or Cheapest," that no customer need leave the store on account of price or quality, as the proprietor cannot be under sold by any other establishment, and that nothing will be left undone to fit and please those who call.

NEWPORT HARBOR.

The harbor of Newport has gained a world-wide celebrity, both for its ready accessibility at all times, and with the wind from any quarter, to vessels of the largest class, and for the security of its anchorage. And for the smaller class of crafters there are no harbors in the world equal to that of Newport. Spacious and land-locked on every side, a fleet of five hundred sail of vessels could ride out the heaviest gale there with ease and safety. But our object is not to issue a panegyric on what is already so well known, but to state a fact that appears not to be sufficiently realized by those interested in the commercial prosperity of our city. The harbor of Newport is gradually filling up. Especially is this the case with that portion east of Goat Island, known as the Inner Harbor. Slowly it is going on, but surely, like the formation, in some parts of the world, of coral reefs, only more rapidly. Perhaps the filling up is at the rate of an inch a year, perhaps more, perhaps less. The brig Edmonson Brothers, which recently discharged a cargo of coal here, came in drawing 17 feet of water, and there was not water sufficient to float her to the wharf, and a large portion of her cargo had to be discharged by lighters. At the other wharves it is worse still. Where half a century ago we are told there was 12 feet of water, there is now scarcely 7 feet, and all along the wharves, where once vessels drawing from 10 to 12 feet of water came in without difficulty, vessels of the same draught cannot now approach at all. This difficulty, too, extends all through the Inner Harbor, where once was sufficient depth for vessels of any class, but where now vessels drawing 12 feet cannot come, except in the narrow strip near Goat Island, forming the channel, where there are 14 feet. In a few years more, unless something is done to deepen the docks and harbor, even ordinary craft will not be able to reach our wharves, or even to find an anchorage in the harbor. In addition to this, there are at least two sunken wharves here, directly in the track of vessels coming in to the docks, which are an obstruction to navigation, and should either be removed or buoyed, so that vessels may avoid them.

This filling in is caused principally by the wash of the streets through the sewers, though we are told the steamers coming into the harbor are in the habit of throwing overboard their ashes and clinders just before reaching their wharves. The former probably cannot be remedied, though we think the latter could and should be.

In the opinion of many, it would have been more wise had the filling in to the Inner Wharf been taken from the bottom of the harbor, instead of using sand and gravel from up the river for that purpose, that will be likely to sink through the mud and render the water still more shallow beside the wharf. The digging out and deepening this harbor and the docks has got to be done, and the only question is, whether it shall be done now, or left for another generation.

MUNICIPAL.—The old City Council will meet at the City Hall, this (Monday) afternoon, at 2 o'clock, for the completion of the business of the year. At 3 o'clock, the Council will proceed to the State House, the Aldermen occupying the Senate Chamber, and the Common Council the Representative Hall. The two Boards will immediately join in convention, when the oath of office will be administered to the Mayor by the City Clerk; the oath will then be administered to the Aldermen and Common Council elect by the Mayor. A City Clerk will then be elected and the oath administered. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. W. Colvin Brown. The Mayor will then deliver his Annual Address, and the two Boards will separate and adjourn. The public are invited to attend. Seats will be reserved for ladies.

PANORAMA OF DR. KANE'S ARCTIC VOYAGES.—Tonight this famous exhibition opens. The subject is of itself deeply interesting. "The romantic achievements, perils and hardships of one of Columbia's bravest sons," and the painting is a chief's cure of one of the greatest living American artists. And when we are informed that this graphic representation of so exciting a subject is to be delineated by the eloquence of Rufus Sumner, it might be considered sufficient; but the auxiliary attractions are numerous and excellent. We fear Aquidneck Hall will not be large enough to hold the audience, and we recommend those who wish to gain admission to attend early.

Four persons were received into the membership of the Central Baptist Church at the close of the afternoon service yesterday. Two of these were husband and wife, and the other two a young gentleman and lady, brother and sister. The charge to the candidates, and the accompanying prayer, by Rev. Dr. Jackson, pastor of the church, was beautifully and eloquently appropriate to the occasion, moistening the eyes of many present with tears.

EXTINGUISHED.—The light in the State House clock. Reason—the Assembly refused any longer to foot the gas bill—$400 a year. The clock was a great convenience in the night time, and its withdrawal will be generally regretted.

The following notice from a boy, appears in Jamestown, N. Y., Journal:

NOTICE.—Whereas, my father, Newton Salisbury, has forbidden me his bed and board, for the reason I visit and assisted at my sister's house during her husband's sickness and death; therefore, I forbid his harboring any other boy in my stead.

THE FRENCH GENERAL.—The Vienna correspondent of the London Times, thus speculates:

It is the general expression in military circles that the war will be a guerre de volée. No confidence is entertained in the ability of any of the French Generals to conduct what Jomini calls les grandes opérations. They have been educated in the principles of a species of skirmishing warfare, la petite guerre, in Algeria, where military science and skillful combination were seldom had recourse to, but were replaced by rapid marches on the enemy, a quick volley, and a charge with the bayonet.

This system, however successful it may have been with small bodies of men in the presence of undisciplined foes, will fail, it is expected, when several corps d'armées, numbering a hundred thousand men, have to be combined in one grand movement. Where, it is asked, is the General who can safely manoeuvre such a force in a difficult country, and in front of an army like that of Austria. Marshal Canrobert broke down in the Crimea. Marshal Viallard did not succeed in his combinations at the War of Mexico; McMahon, the most promising of all, has not been tried in the management of great operations, and the Emperor, without calling in doubt his high theoretical qualifications, his deep research into military history, and inventive genius, has never had any practice at all, never having commanded a corps of troops. There is, however, a hope, which among the ignorant is a fanatical belief, that the Emperor may exhibit all the qualities of a great general. He has not been spoiled by practice in mountain warfare. He is cool, collected, and self-reliant, chary of his words, secret in his plans, and not easily influenced by the counsels of others, all of which are so many virtues in a commander-in-Chief.

But should the Emperor-General not exhibit the military genius expected of him, then "our only hope," say the officers, "is in the rapidity and vivacity of the attacks of the soldiers, in their bravery and dash."

MULTIUM IN PARVO.—We have seldom seen a happier thing than the following for which credit is due the Albany Evening Journal. Every reader will thank us for laying before them so much information, historical and pronouncement.

A Chapter on Pronouncing the Names of Places at the Seat of War.

On the 29th of April, the Austrians crossed the River Ticino (Te-chee-no) they at Pavia (Pa-vee-a) and Bergamo (Ba-ra-gwar-do), and would have crossed at Buffalora (Boo-fa-lo-ra) had they not found the bridge blown up. They occupied the towns of Novara (No-va-ra), Vigevano (Je-ay-va-no), Pallanza (Hallan-za), Romagnano (Roman-ya-no) and Vesuvio (Ver-chel-lee), establishing their headquarters, first at Robbio (Rob-be-o) and afterwards at Mortara (Mor-tah-ra). They fortified themselves on the banks of the river Sesia (Sa-se-a) and as far north as the Lago Maggiore (Lah-go-Mad-je-ra). They pushed their reconnoitering parties as far west as Stroppiana (Strop-ah-na) and Santina (San-te-a) and southward as far as San Geronzio (San-je-ro-nio) and Veruggio (Ver-uh-gee-o), having crossed the Po at Cornale (Corn-ha) and menaced Tortona (Tor-to-na). At Frassineto (Fra-sa-net-to) they had a skirmish with the Sardinians, at Pontecurone (Pon-ta-Coo-ro-na) they blew up a railway bridge, and at Valenza (Vah-len-za) destroyed another. So much for the troops of Count Gyula (Jo-li).

Meanwhile the French, crossing the Alps, came pouring down from Mont Cenis (Mon-She-ne) into Suza (Soosa) and pushing forward to join the Sardinians at Turin, which they call Torino (Tor-re-no), whence the allied troops advanced to fortify the banks of the Dora Baltea (Dora-Bal-tay-a).

The other division of the French, and the Emperor Napoleon himself, landed at Genoa (in Italian Ge-no-va) and proceeded north by railway to Novi (No-vee) where they joined the Sardinian column, whose headquarters were at the impregnable fortress of Alessandria (Alessan-dra-a) and who also held the fortified town of Casale (Ca-sah-la). The King and the Emperor have met, established their temporary headquarters at Occimino (Ot-che-me-ah-no) whence they can easily communicate with their respective commanders—General Lamarmora (Lamarmora) and Marshal Canrobert (Cann-ro-bair).

Mr. Hill, who mysteriously disappeared from Bridgeport, Conn., a few weeks since, has written to his wife, who had offered $100 for his recovery, that she had better keep her money, as she may want it.

A Challenge Declined.

Dr. J. S. Brown, of St. Louis, invited the entire Chess Club of Bath, N. Y., to play a match game by correspondence.

The letter was addressed to Mr. Samuel Hammond, the only member of the Club with whom he had the pleasure of an acquaintance. The following reply, says the St. Louis Democrat, was received at the office in due course of time, which is so finely written, and is such an excellent evasion of the defiance, that we give it entire:

BATH, March 3, 1859.

DEAR SIR:—I received your challenge. Pardon what the world may call my pusillanimity—I am no fighting man in any sense of the term. No fighter with pistol, sword, rifle or blunderbuss, nor with such other weapons as the heroes of the game of chess use; I am emphatically a man of peace. While I edited the Albany Register, I offended a hot-blooded member of the F. F.'s of New York. He sent a polite invitation by a friend, for me to visit Baltimore. Having no business in that direction, I declined. He again, through his friend, invited me to visit Canada. Having just returned from a fishing excursion to the interior of Her Majesty's colony, and having no occasion to go that way, I again declined. He then, in direct terms, invited me to name a friend and time, weapons and place, to indulge in the pleasant pastime of cutting each other's throats. I thought the matter over, and declined a third time, assigning the following reasons:

1. The thing was contrary to law, and I had no desire to be hung for killing him; or that he should be hung for killing me.

2. I had a wife who loved me, and who would mourn for me if I fell. He had only a mistress, who would rejoice at his death as relieving her from the necessity of lying from his protection to that of some other man.

3. I had three children, for whose education I was in honor and by nature bound to provide. He had none.

4. Society had no stake in his life. His continuance would be no blessing, and its extinguishment no loss. Society had some claims upon me—upon him it had none. I had some claims upon society—he had none.

5. I'd see him d—d first.

And there the matter has rested ever since.

Slavery Extinctionist.

The following anecdote in connection with the veritable Horace Greeley, which occurred during his recent passage through St. Joseph, we think worthy of being presented to the readers of the Gazette:

Mr. Greeley, when about leaving for Leavenworth, was accompanied to the boat by his friend Col. —, of this city, where they met Mr. W., a dealer in negroes between this place and the South. The Col. with the affability for which he is characteristic, introduced the gentleman. Mr. W., with great warmth, seized the hand of Horace, saying, "I assure you, sir, I feel much honored by the acquaintance of so distinguished a gentleman, one whom I have always admired for his talent, and felt grateful for his philanthropy. Believe me, sir, you are doing much good for the cause in this part of the country. Accept the thanks of an humble member of society. No one feels a more deep interest in your efforts than myself. I wish you much success."

"Indeed," replied Mr. Greeley, "I am happy to hear such sentiments, and to see such men as yourself and Col. —, who I did not expect the least sympathy in, in this land where the inquiry of the nation is so firmly rooted. God be praised, the work goes bravely on."

"With your aid," returned Mr. W., "slavery will soon cease to exist in Missouri. The number of slaves is now fast decreasing." Here Mr. G. attempted to withdraw with his new found friend from observation. Mr. W. continued, "I am myself doing something toward removing them. Only last week I took away thirteen."

"My good friend, how?"

"To New Orleans."

"Great God!" exclaimed Horace, "what! a dealer in human souls?"

"Yes sir, it is that which you call it. I buy and sell negroes. I am indebted to you for the profits of my business. Slaveholders here sell me their slaves for half their value in the South, to keep your disciples from stealing them!"

Is the Pope Coming to America?

The following letter is translated from the Milwaukee Atlas (German):—

MILWAUKEE, May 7, 1859.

"To Pius, Esquire, in Rome:

"With deep emotion I have read in the papers that you are about to move, for the reason that the times are becoming daily worse and worse in the States of the Church, and the Italians no longer have any affection for you. A few days since information was received here to the effect that you would probably come to America, where the times are also bad, and many people have no employment. Though you would probably land in New York, I would recommend you by no means to stop there, but to come immediately to the West. But don't let yourself be swindled in the ticket office, but buy a genuine ticket and come by the way of Buffalo and Detroit to Milwaukee. I mean it well, and offer you a situation with me. I have had, for several years a good larger beer business, but am in need, however, of a barkeeper of distinction. You can have employment from me as bar-keeper. I promise you twelve dollars per month, beer and cigars free, and every two weeks a free Sunday. Telegraph me as soon as you arrive in New York."

"Your most obedient servant

Those Hoors.—At Cincinnati, the other day, a young lady was passing through a doorway, when her coops caught the door and pulled it to with great violence, breaking two panes of glass in it, a large piece of the glass falling upon her arm and severing the main artery. The blood gushed from her arm terribly for a few moments, and she grew so weak that she could not sit or stand. Medical assistance was promptly called in, and the flow of blood was soon stopped, but at last accounts her life was in danger.

Boston has appropriated $15,000 for the celebration of the 4th of July.

A great aim in family discipline should be to provide for each of the juveniles some line pursuit which will give them a sense of their usefulness and necessity to the household. This feeling, properly instilled into their minds, will make them members of society valuable to others, and happy in themselves. The Creator, who makes nothing in vain, does not in vain send human beings into the world, if only they would find their places and fill them. Idle men and women are the bane of any community. They are not simply clogs upon society, but become, sooner or later, the cause of its crime and poverty, its folly and extravagance. In plain old English, every family motto should read: "Be somebody; Do something; Bear your own load." Philadelphia American.

There is sound philosophy in the above. But there is yet another view of the subject which our contemporaries might have expatiated upon. It is this—the practical comfort brought into a household by giving even the most juvenile of juveniles some employment and aim. Much of fretfulness and bad temper on the part of even very young children might thus be prevented, however simple the employment or aim might be. So soon as a child can observe or think at all, it will be the happier and better for having something to do.
